

B. Defining Modal Particles

Handout 4: Defining Modal Particles: denn

a) Various meanings of denn:

1. Coordinating conjunction (= ‘because’)

Example (email):

Ich werde jetzt versuchen alle deine Fragen zu beantworten, denn es freut mich, dass du so neugierig bist.

2. Temporal adverb (=dann, ‘then’)

Example (email):

Nun denn, das war’s für heute.

3. Modal particle:

- refers back to something previously stated or to the context of situation
- renders a question more natural and friendly
- emphasizes the interest of the speaker in the interlocutor’s response

b) Types of sentences in which the MP denn can appear:

Only interrogatives, or questions (used to ask someone something):

Examples (chat):

Wie spät ist es denn jetzt bei euch?

c) Examples of native speaker usage of the MP denn with commentary:

Example (email):

na, wie geht es dir denn heute? [...]

Ah, du schwimmst. Wie oft machst du das denn?

Commentary: In the first sentence, which is an email opening, denn refers back to a previous correspondence between Nina and Paula. In the second occurrence, denn refers back to the preceding sentence. Denn thus functions as a cohesive device, or connector. In both occurrences, denn also expresses friendliness and interest in the partner’s response.